Poet Rod McKuen to headline WTSU fall special programs

Composer-singer - poet Rod McKuen headlines the three offerings next fall in the faculty special program series at West Texas State University.

Other offerings include conservative author Reid Buckley and the St. Louis Jazz Quartet.

Two of three programs for the spring semester next year have also been tentatively set. One is expected to be a speech by Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, Texas gubernatorial candidate and liberal. And, the other is expected to be the Aeolian Chamber Players.

Buckley is scheduled to appear at 8 p.m. Sept. 13 at the university activities center. His speech topic is "Can Conservatives Be Progressive?"

Buckley is billed as a cultural and social critic, author, film script writer and speaker.

He says of himself "I'm a Christian, Libertarian conservative. This day and age, how radical can you get?"

A son of oil explorer William F. Buckley, he is the younger brother of Sen. James Buckley of New York and of William F. Buckley Jr., editor-in-chief of National Review.

The author of "The Eye of the Hurricane," a novel stressing the ecological depredation Americans have committed on nature, Buckley has contributed to Vogue, Diplomat, The Atlantic Monthly, Life and other magazines.

He has been assistant to the editor of Freeman Magazine, a contributing editor to National Review and the literary contributing editor of Triumph magazine.

McKuen is scheduled to hold a "rap session" at 8 p.m. Oct. 10 at the activities center.

Dr. John Green, dean of the WTSU school of fine arts, said McKuen will not appear in concert but will carry on dialogue with the audience.

"That's the reason I do rap sessions and open myself to that kind of appearance, which everyone says I'm crazy to do," McKuen says. "I only want to be a human being constantly in touch with other human beings. And, I can't do that without knowing what people are about."

McKuen is well known for his books of poetry and has appeared in numerous television specials in concert.

The St. Louis Jazz Quartet will play at 8 p.m. Nov. 13, in the activities center.

The quartet features vocalist Jeanne Trevor, Terrence Kippenberger as bassist, David Scrage as keyboard instrumentalist and vocalist, and Charles Payne as percussionist.

In addition Mrs. Farenthold will be scheduled to appear in the spring term. Possible speech topics include, "Can Liberals Be Reactionary?" and "The Bill of

Season ticket sales for Buffaloes to begin

West Texas State University will open its football season ticket sales push July 17 in Perryton.

The Buffalo coaching staff will tour to seven Panhandle area towns as a group to sell season tickets for the tough six-game home schedule in 1973.

Other towns and dates are Borger, July 18; Dumas, July 19; Amarillo, July 20; Tulia, July 24; Pampa, July 26; and Amarillo, July 27. The coaching staff will also sell tickets in Hereford one day, but that date has not yet been set.

In addition to the first group of towns, smaller groups of the West Texas State athletic staff will sell tickets in Friona, Dimmitt, Plainview, Panhandle, White Deer, Stratford and Dal-

Umbarger now wet

Umbarger area became the second Randall County precinct to okay the sale of all alcoholic beverages during balloting Saturday.

Sale of alcoholic beverages including mixed drinks passed by a two-to-one vote, 72 for and 33 against.

A total of 185 persons were eligible to vote in the Saturday local option election. A total of 106 persons cast ballots in the election. One absentee ballot was cast.

The precinct encompassing the Amarillo area is the only other area where sale of alcoholic beverages including mixed drinks is permitted. Amarillo area voters passed the sale last November.

The Saturday vote at Umbarger's school was less than the number who voted last November in the general election. At that time more than 130 persons went to the polls.

The Canyon area justice precinct and a precinct to the north of the Umbarger area remain as the only precincts still dry in Randall County.

Petitions seeking a local option election in the Canyon area was circulated late last summer but not enough signatures to call the election were gained and the decision never went to the voters.

Umbarger area residents had once before been thwarted in their efforts to bring the issue to the ballot box. In the fall of 1972, petitions were circulated to call an election.

However, when the petitions were presented to commissioners court, it was learned that due to a previous redesignation of the precinct the balloting could not take place.

The Texas attorney general ruled at that time that the issue could not go to the voters in the Umbarger area until the end of an 18-month waiting period.

That waiting period expired early this year.

Election judge for Saturday's election was W.P. Janssen.

Bike riders come in in a lump as they cross the finish line Wednesday in the Police Department-sponsored races here. The races were just one activity on the Fourth of July. Another activity, fireworks, caused half a dozen fires in the county — including the scene at right south of Canyon.

Mother Nature stages display

Mother Nature staged her own spectacular fireworks display Wednesday night in competition with the booming rockets fired by H. R. Fulton to celebrate the Fourth of July in Canyon.

Dark and threatening clouds formed the backdrop in the south as Fulton fired about 45 minutes worth of sparkling and raucous fireworks and the clouds, as if on command, provided interspersed lightning for the show.

More than 3000 persons flocked to Conner Park to the amazement of local sponsors of the Fourth of July festivities to see the annual fireworks display and to eat watermelon.

Canyon's Fourth of July began under clear skies Wednesday and proceeded through high temperatures through the afternoon.

But, about 6 p.m., black thunderclouds moved over the area, drenching the town in about .30 inches of moisture and cancelling one scheduled event in the Fourth's activities.

Canyon youngsters in the city's summer recreation program were scheduled to display their talents in the swimming pool, on tumbling mats and with batons beginning about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Their program proved to be the only activity cancelled due to the rain.

The downpour stopped about 8 p.m., just about the time the annual giant free watermelon feed was to begin at Conner Park and cautious residents moved into the park shortly thereafter as chamber of commerce officials unloaded truck after truck of ripe melons.

It sprinkled only lightly just as the fireworks display began but most of those gathered stayed put and watched the show.

Wednesday began with about 35 Canyon youngsters and not-so-youngsters competing in bicycle races sponsored by the Canyon Police Department.

In the first race, Carl McClendon, 6, of 1609 8th Ave., took home the first place trophy with Rory McCrady, 5, second and Rex Roberts, 6, third.

Meg Reeves, 8, of 910 25th Street, was first in the second race with Barbara Sommer, 9, of 1103 Creekmere, second, and Danny Byrd, 7, of 610 10th St., third.

In the third race, Tracy Byrd, 12, of 1415 Hillcrest was first, followed by Bruce Byrd, 11, of 610 10th St., in second and Eddie Clement, 12, of 1209 9th Ave., in third.

First place honors in the fourth race went to Monty Crawford, 13, of 1808 8th Ave. Second place was won by Steven Childs, 14, of 702 Foster Lane, and third was won by Tom Carr, 13, of 1426 Hillcrest.

Kenneth Barton, 18, of 2618 10th Ave., won the first place in the fifth race with second going to Melinda Morris, 18, of 702

Wheat all in; yield said good

Wheat harvest in Randall County is finished and local grain elevators report a crop unchallenged in size for at least a decade.

Only small acreages are not harvested, it was reported late last week.

"It's the best crop we've had in a long time quality and quantity both," said Don Sheets, manager of Consumer's Coop Elevator in Canyon.

Sheets reported that his elevator is handling this year about four times as much wheat as it handled last summer.

"Yields are especially good on dryland," he said. "On irrigated, it's not much different."

Sheets said he has heard reports of yields on dryland wheat of between 25 and 35 bushels per acre.

"The quality is good," he said, "but the protein is a little lower this year than before."

Sheets said the elevator has taken in about 900,000 bushels of wheat so far this summer.

A spokesman for the Umbarger elevator reported yields in his area of between 20 and more than 30 bushels per acre.

"There's no way to compare it to last year," he said.

The Umbarger elevator reported handling about 200,000 bushels of wheat this summer.

A spokesman for the Happy Elevator Company said yields in the southern part of the county ranged from a low of about 16 bushels per acre to a high of about 32.

The weather, which provided showers throughout the wheat growing season and later provided hot dry days for harvest, may have been kind to wheat farmers, but it could cause problems for grain sorghum farmers.

County Agent John Brazzil said most planting is finished for grain sorghum in the county.

He said although moisture has been scarce, good subsoil moisture has been available.

If rains do not come within the next month, though, the story could be bleak for grain sorghum crops.

Brazzil said the critical time for the osrghum crop as far as moisture is concerned is in the first weeks of August.

Brazzil said the annual insect invasion of the sorghum crop continues, but the threat from a small insect called the thrip has subsided.

4 million gallons pumped Tuesday

Water usage sets record here

Water usage by city residents and businesses soared to a new record Tuesday as water wells pumped more than 4.15 million gallons of water for lawns, air conditioners and washing machines.

It's been a record-breaking summer for water usage, according to City Clerk Bob Moore.

A previous record was set June 27 when 4.0 million gallons of water were pumped into town from the city's Umbarger well field.

The high water pumping record reflects a lack of moisture since late spring in the city. Just over three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in the county during June and just over an inch fell in May.

So far in July, just over .30 inches have fallen and that fell during the evening on the Fourth of July.

Even so, July 4 was recorded as a high water use day with 3.073 million gallons pumped.

A total of 85.46 million gallons of water were pumped from the well fields during June, an average of 2.85 million gallons per day.

On July 1, 2.8 million gallons were pumped while 3.88 million gallons were pumped on July 2, and 2.75 million gallons were pumped on July 5.

On June 26, the city approached the 4 million gallon mark when 3.99 million gallons were pumped.

In years past, high rates of water usage were hazardous, but this year the high rates cause little concern at city hall.

Moore explained that in the past on days when usage was high, the small reserve stored at the Umbarger fields would be quickly depleted and before the days were out the city would be pumping water directly from the wells.

In many instances, this caused dry lines and, in the case of a major fire, could have resulted in major damage due to water shortages.

But, late last summer, the city began work on a new 1 million gallon storage reserve facility at the Umbarger field. With the reserve now in operation, it allows the city to pump water not from the wells directly but from the reserve leaving ample supply for emergencies.

Moore said lawn watering accounts for a large percentage of the water use in the summer. The city's biggest water customer is West Texas State University where lawns are being constantly watered throughout the summer.

Moore said the city pumped 60 million gallons of water in June of 1972 and 3.5 million gallons was recorded as the maximum pumped on any one day that year.

Water usage is up in Canyon this summer and this youngster takes a little time from lawn watering to spray a passerby. Whether it's for lawns, clothes, cars or passersby, the water is being used in record volume this summer.

Lawyer's license is suspended

The license to practice law of a Canyon attorney who has been a candidate for office at the local and state level has been suspended for one year by the State Bar Association.

A judgment of suspension was filed recently in the Randall County District Clerk's office in connection with the license to practice of Rhett Plank, who has been a candidate for district attorney and state representative.

The judgment is filed by Jess C. Dickie of Amarillo, chairman of the Bar Association's grievance committee.

The suspension was effective June 27. Plank filed a consent to the judgment on that date.

The judgment states that the grievance committee, basing its action on the testimony of two complainants, has found Plank guilty "of professional misconduct in that he took money from clients without performing any corresponding service."

Complaints against Plank were filed by Flavio Crespin Jr. and Joyce Walser Markham, according to the judgment.

The judgment says the grievance committee conducted hearings where Plank appeared and testified.

The committee found, the judgment says, that in October 1972, Plank was retained by Crespin to represent his brother, Alfonso Crespin, who was facing a revocation of probation in Hereford.

Plank collected $500 of a $1500 fee, the judgment states, and went to see his client in October of 1972.

"He did nothing further on the matter except inquired generally from the sheriff's department on what information they had about

$2 million due local farmers in federal set-aside payments

About $2.25 million will be distributed to Randall County farmers this summer in federal farm program set-aside payments, according to Donald F. Lloyd, director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here.

Lloyd said the amount is about half the amount paid farmers last summer. Released crop acreages account for the lowering of the fees.

"We'll be distributing the checks today and early next week to the people who have filed final acreage certification for the year," Lloyd said.

Deadline for filing is Aug. 1.

"The quicker they file the quicker we can get the payments ready and out to them," he said.

Lloyd said the checks should speed to county farmers this year due to a streamlined system in his office.

While last summer, it took about three weeks or a month for the checks to be processed and sent to the farmers, this year the ASCS office has the checks and must spend only a few days checking their statistics before mailing the checks.

Lloyd said checks should be in the ASCS office for all farmers and will be sent as soon as possible after certification.

The ASCS director said the checks include payments for the feed grain, wheat and cotton set-aside programs.

"There'll be more wheat payment coming," he said.

Lloyd said the checks include a payment of only 68 cents per bushel. Federal officials have predicted the price in December will be 90 cents per bushel and are paying at this time 75 per cent of that price, he said.

So, farmers can expect an approximate 22 cents per bushel check later this fall. The wheat set-aside price is figured on the national market for a five-month period.

Cotton and feed grain payments are already figured and the 100 per cent payment will be paid in the check to be mailed this summer.

Lloyd said the payments go to about 750 farms.

He said the $2.25 million paid this year is about half the total allotment paid last summer.

Groundbreaking today on Presbyterian church

Groundbreaking for a new First Presbyterian Church in Canyon will be at 11:15 a.m. today at the site, 19th Street and 9th Avenue.

Bids were recently awarded for construction of a new church to Tom Badrow Construction of Amarillo. The church is expected to cost about $290,000.

Local city officials will be on hand for the ceremonies as will representatives of the architectural firm which designed the church.

And, all areas of the congregation will be represented in the sod-turning.

Mayor J. Manly Bryan is expected to make a few brief comments along with Raymond Raillard, president of the chamber of commerce.

Jim Irwin, chairman of the executive building board of the church, will introduce members of the planning committee — Sydney Burgess, Ples Harper and Bruce Winn.

The Rev. Baldwin Stribling, pastor will conduct the service which will include a scripture lesson by Mrs. Fred Olson and Brenda Counseller. The choir, directed by Mrs. W. R. Wilson, will sing "My God's a Mighty Maker," and Travis McBride will read the litany.

To symbolize the roots of the congregation, descendants of two of the charter families of the church will turn the first ground.

They are Byron Campbell of Amarillo, grandson of founders Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Campbell. Campbell's mother, Mrs. R. L. Campbell, is a member of the church. Mrs. Joe Murphy of Huntsville, a great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Knights will also be present.

Seats of honor will be provided for those who have been in the church 50 years or more. Nineteen families are eligible. Walter Shelly and Fred Olson, elders, will break ground for this group.

Members of all ages will have a hand at the shovel during the morning ceremony.

Melissa Shelly, Vanessa Cole, Newton Harrell and Peter Shelly will turn ground for the younger children.

Kay Counseller, Eric Van Pelt and Mary Ann Heiman will turn ground for the 5th through 12th graders.

Our World

Stirring Healthy Discontent

By ANN BROWN

The gas shortage that is creating problems for a rapidly increasing number of people is insignificant compared to the food shortage that is certain to come if our policy makers continue to reject the vital facts of economics.

We start teaching our children almost from birth that they must make choices. They can't burst their balloons and play with them, too.

Americans can close down the refineries and other smoke-belching factories, but they can also expect to do without gas, oil, and other products of those smelly industries.

The same "esthetic" people are demanding assembly lines be scrapped because they are "dehumanizing." Are they prepared to pay several times the current prices for American-made automobiles and other products of the assembly lines?

The radical chic complain that production-line work is not as pleasant as business or the professions.

Is it fraught with as much responsibility?

Does it require as many years of expensive preparation?

An old, illiterate scrub woman had a ready answer for the people who attempted to commiserate with her on her seemingly miserable lot in life.

"Them that ain't got," she said, "ain't got nothin' to worry about."

One might question the wisdom of her choice, but having made it the woman wisely lived out her life happily — with no regrets.

We can't have new refineries because they pollute the atmosphere. On and offshore drilling might pollute the water. An Alaskan pipeline might disturb the caribou. So we chose clean air, water, and tundra in preference to adequate gas supplies.

Another choice was made in the price freeze. If prices will not defray cost of production, then commercial production will cease.

If Americans prefer no meat to paying the producers a living wage, that's their right.

Several million farmers gave their last measure of devotion to their lands, and went bankrupt in a vain effort to make ends meet.

Now we have a whole new ballgame. The corporations that have taken over the family farms may lack the farmer's love for the land, but they will make farming a profitable occupation again.

Probably no farmer alive could drown the baby chicks he had incubated. But the absentee owner's hired hands have no choice.

The farmers who are willing to feed the world as long as they can barely exist on the land have about all died off. The new breed of farmers will either share the wealth they produce — or quit producing it.

Discontent is commendable within reason. Almost all human progress is the result of dissatisfaction.

Men become civilized only when they are unhappy with savagery. That is the frightening aspect of so many of our young people reverting to dirty, hairy idleness. These are the symbols of savagery.

A lack of respect for one's personal appearance and an unwillingness to provide for one's own needs indicates disrespect for the feelings and rights of others; this is the essence of savagery.

Why the outcry over the mere drowning of the baby chicks? Wouldn't the cuddly little balls of fluff have all been killed in a few weeks anyway?

Yes, they would — but only after they had fulfilled their purpose of creation.

The owner could much more easily have destroyed the eggs — or not incubated them at all. But that would not have had the same shock value.

Apparently, it is going to take some kind of shock to awaken Americans to the dangers the Ralph Naders, who ignore the natural laws of economics, pose for us. Must we be deprived of fuel and food before we depose these destructive dictators?

Americans have tolerated unbridled crime and crushing taxes, but closed gas stations and empty supermarkets may stir up a little healthy discontent.

Trackster Inks With WT Buffs

Alvis Wright of Paducah will attend West Texas State University this fall and plans to run track for the Buffaloes of coach Bob Kitchens.

Wright, who won the Class A regional meet with a 9.5 clocking in the 100-yard dash, is 5-9 and 145.

The three-sport man from Paducah ran 9.8 in the state qualifiers meet at Lubbock and placed third in the state meet at Austin with a 10.0 clocking.

"We feel Alvis has tremendous potential in the sprints," said Kitchens. "He is a raw talent who has the gift of unusual speed."

Wright lettered three years each in football and track and four years in basketball. He won the district 100-yard dash title as a junior with a 9.8 time and placed fifth in the regional meet.

In football he earned second team all-district honors this past fall as an offensive halfback.

A B average student, Wright plans to major in physical education at West Texas State.

City Desk

A Lesson Well Learned

By CARROLL WILSON

The master plan submitted by a Dallas architectural firm last week to Canyon city commissioners for a new city civic center complex and office building includes a couple of contingency plans of interest.

In considering space allocations for a new city offices building, the architects have included a contingency plan for jail facilities and dispatcher's office for city vehicles.

"Space should be provided for a dispatcher's office in the event that the County is no longer able to provide dispatch service for the city, the master plan states. "Jail facilities are now being provided by the County and it is anticipated that this arrangement will continue in the future. However, space allocation in the new facility should be structured so that jail facilities could be added, possibly on a second floor, should such a need arise in the future."

The rift between city and county is no figment of this newspaper's imagination. It is very real and can be traced back at least three or four years to a point in time when current County Commissioner Paul Lindsey was mayor of the city.

At that time, the city and county had a dispute over who should be paying for dump ground facilities. The issue arose because the city was facing some major expenditures to comply with federal air pollution standards. Formerly, the dump ground had simply been an area where trash was burned. But, the federal government and state government passed a requirement that cities of certain size, and Canyon fit the category, should not be allowed to burn trash.

In changing to a land-fill system, the city sought aid from the county. No aid was forthcoming and the matter was dropped. County commissioners have a habit of never talking about a subject they don't want to participate in. They just let it die.

The city's desire to have a new fire truck to fight fires primarily in the rural areas outside of Canyon caused the latest trouble between city and county.

The $30,000 for the fire truck should be paid by the county, city commissioners contended and their request was formally presented county commissioners.

At first, the county commissioners seemed attuned to the idea, but then they struck on the notion they should build a new South Amarillo courthouse annex. So, money they might have spent for a new fire truck was earmarked, if not physically at first, then mentally, for the courthouse annex.

Miffed, city commissioners told City Manager George Loudder to prepare a survey of all services which the city provides the county or which the county provides the city.

At that meeting, the statement was made by one city commissioner that "we'll just let them (the county) provide their own dump ground and see how they like it."

While city commissioners and county commissioners may not like for the public to know that they are mad at each other, it is a fact.

Again, I reiterate, taxpayer money cannot be spent foolishly by two governmental units who just can't get along due to stubbornness. Taxpayers money must not be spent providing duplicate facilities in a new city office building when it is so much cheaper for the two governments to cooperate.

In fact, duplicate facilities of any kind should be minimized by the governmental units. Their charge is the welfare of the taxpayer and the careful spending of his dollar. Their charge is not to make another governmental entity come through the woods because of petty dissension.

A final chapter in the continuing saga of trying to get U.S. Rep. Bob Price to find out certain information:

As you'll recall, I wrote an open letter to our congressman several months ago, back in February or January, outlining to him the problems I'd encountered in trying to obtain some figures on how much the FHA loses annually on no-recourse loan schemes.

At the time I wrote my open letter, I had waited about four or five months to receive the information which Price had earlier promised.

My open letter achieved some reaction. Price called not long after that and said he had had the information from FHA on his desk and it had apparently been lost.

Apologetically, he promised to obtain another copy of the information and send it as soon as possible.

Weeks went by and I finally called his office and asked about the information.

A short time later, I got a call from a Price assistant who said he was going to plug me in with some hotshot from the FHA who would answer all my questions.

Well, I talked with the FHA man — some slick-tongued bureaucrat in the FHA's legislative liaison office — and he asked me to outline the information I wanted. I complied and at the end of a 15-minute conversation, he asked me to write him a letter and he'd get me what information he could.

Needless to say, I have written no such letter.

My original idea was to ask Price to obtain the statistical information about no-recourse loans as much for his benefit as for mine. I wanted the information for a story, true. But, I also wanted to illustrate to Price, who vehemently declaimed no-recourse loans last fall right before the election, the amount of money taxpayers are losing annually due to the FHA loan system.

He, after all, is in a position to change and make laws which should be changed or made.

Price's interest in no-recourse loans took a real nosedive after election day and as you have witnessed in this column, trying to get him to answer a simple request has been an insurmountable task.

Plugging me into a Washington bureaucrat who works for the very agency which is perpetuating a lending system which conceivably accounts for the loss of millions annually in taxpayer dollars (I don't know how much because I don't have the figures Price didn't get) was hardly what I expected.

I suspect that for months Price fed me a bunch of hooey about having the figures and then, to get me off his back, he simply turned me over to another bureaucrat.

Sorry, folks, but I'm not in the mood for any more wild goose chases.

And, I've learned a little lesson in politics, a lesson I need not have learned because it's almost a truism of American politics.

Don't believe a politician during the heat of a campaign. And, don't depend on a politician to fulfill a pledge made during a campaign.

Frankly, I'm hesitant to lend much credibility to Price after this affair any time of the year.

Older and wiser am I.

J.L. Matthews Revives History

By SUSAN RUSHING

History lives in items of the past that have been forgotten in dark, musty corners and on tops of dusty shelves. Then the priceless items are salvaged and treasured by antique collectors and hobbyists such as John L. Matthews of Canyon.

Still enduring "Old Man Time" are a couple of nature-worn pots owned by Mr. and Mrs. Matthews that would hardly be found in the kitchen of any modern housewife. The aged containers would remind one of the typical witch's cauldron and if one's imagination could go beyond that, one could almost see the witches stirring their brew. That's how real, but almost at the same time how unreal the pots are.

Displayed in the front yard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Matthews, 810 15th Street, are antique pots dating back 100 and 140 years.

The youngest but largest pot has a capacity of 40-50 gallons and was used by the Mexicans in New Mexico about a hundred years ago to boil salt out of salty water. This pot sits under a tree in the Matthews front yard. A battered old bucket hangs from the tree by a rope and pulley contraption above the pot which has been in the couple's possession for about 30 years.

The other pot is smaller, but in years has gathered seniority over the larger pot. This container dates as far back as the Texas Revolution, 1836, and has survived Mrs. Matthews' great grandmother who was noted for making lye soap in it around 140 years ago.

They just don't make 'em like they used to. Wonder what this year's pots will look like in the year 2113 or if they will even be around.

Delving even deeper into the annals of history and giving time a more challenging "put-down" are several books in a collection of some 200 including autobiographies, history records and facts, dictionaries, encyclopedias, Bibles, and no telling what else. Dating back to 1817 and 1825 are two King James version Bibles, hard bound in black and well used, but still very readable.

Fashions are displayed by elegant looking ladies in a Harper's New Monthly Magazine edition of 1965, found while rummaging through stacks of books in Matthews' small, yet accommodating book room at the back of the house. In fact, the capped sleeve was very "in" during 1865, according to the magazine.

Another item of curiosity standing in the Matthews' kitchen is a 1922 Singer sewing machine, or rather, everything but the machine is left. Matthews told a story of the machine's fate to the effect that some Singer people had wanted to make a trade-in deal with him for the machine but that he threw it in the junk yard instead and "I'll be, if someone didn't come along and haul it off," he said.

When asked by a reporter from The News, Matthews said that he has been interested in antique collecting since he was a boy. "I look for things all over the Golden Spread, from about a 100 miles around," he said.

Matthews' searches have no limits. Horse collars, a side blade, many Alabates flint arrowheads, tomahawks and lard presses can be found among his collection.

Matthews came to West Texas in 1914 and married in Wichita County after World War I. In 1922, the couple moved to Hereford where they lived for two years and made residence in Randall County south of Umbarger. They also lived on the north plains, west of Channing in Hartley County for about 29 years before making Canyon their home 20 years ago.

Windmills are a favorite subject of Matthews. He built the red and white windmill displayed in front of the amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon and wants to begin writing windmill stories soon.

There's a glint of "having been there" in Matthews' eyes when he "tells it like it was" with fluctuating voice and gesturing arms and it isn't so easy to decide when he was "there" and when he wasn't.

Special education endorsements may be gained in four areas at WTSU. They are mental retardation, teaching the emotionally disturbed, language and learning disabilities and early childhood education for teachers of exceptional children.

"Most teachers would have to attend school during the regular semesters to complete their special education requirements," said Dr. Wilma Jo Bush, coordinator of the special education program at WTSU.

"However," she continued, "the WTSU Education Department tries to make it convenient and practical for teachers who are currently working during the fiscal year to gain their endorsement in one summer's work."

"Each of the endorsements require 12 additional hours of study except for the language and learning disabilities, and that requires 15 hours," said Dr. Bush.

"West Texas is also well known throughout the state as being a university that is able to offer its students a practical study of actual teaching situations," Dr. Bush commented.

There are several institutions near the university, such as Kilgore Children's Psychiatric Center and Hospital, Amarillo State Center for Human Development, Central Plains Mental Health Clinic, and Camp Wigwam, a summer camp for retarded children, where the students go for on the job training.

Miss Roberts, a 21 year old kindergarten education major at WTSU, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Roberts of Tulia. She became Miss WTSU at the Oct. 12, 1972 crowning and will serve as a varsity cheerleader for the university next year.

Merchandise totalling $450 has been made available to Miss Roberts by Sears and Roebuck, Co. of Amarillo for a week of pageant activities.

The 1973 Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant activities will include a week of meetings, parties, rehearsals, press interviews and dining with preliminary competition being held July 18-20 and final performances beginning at 8:30 p.m., July 21.

Miss Roberts talent entry will be a "Chalk talk" of Richard Armour's "Romeo and Juliet" sketch from his Twisted Tales of Shakespeare.

Serving as official hostess for Miss Roberts during the pageant will be Mrs. B. Raymond (Thelma) Evans of 49 Travis Road, Tulia. A WTSU graduate with a degree in government, Mrs. Evans taught two years in Tulia Schools and her husband is a member of the WTSU Board of Regents.

Mrs. Evans was selected for the 1972 edition of Who's Who in American Women.

The 1973 Miss Texas crowning will take place at the Tarrant County Convention Centre Theatre and a reception will follow at the Chisholm Room, Ramada Inn. Only contestants and persons with badges will be admitted to the reception.

Fort Worth will be hosting 62 Texas beauties, all hopeful to be crowned Miss Texas Number 38 and even more so, Texas' third Miss America. This is the 12th consecutive year that the event has been held in Fort Worth at the Centre Theatre.

Mae Beth Cormany, Miss Texas 1972, is presently on a USO tour of Europe with 1972 Miss America contestants.

Over $9,000 in prizes, including a $1,800 scholarship to Texas Christian University, $3,000 wardrobe from Leonard's Department stores, $500 Toni-Kellogg-Campbell fashion award and $1,000 cash scholarship will be presented to the 1973 Miss Texas in addition to her trophy and crown.

The first runner-up will be awarded with a $1,000 scholarship from Texas Wesleyan College, $600 cash scholarship and a trip to the National Sweetheart Pageant in Hoopeston, Illinois.

Also, graduated scholarships and prizes will be given to other runners-up.

The recently-opened Ramada Inn Central in Ft. Worth has been chosen by the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant Corporation to accomodate staff and contestants.

Handle perishable foods cautiously. Did you know that every year more than 2 million Americans — or one person out of 100 — suffer from salmonellosis? This is an infection of the stomach and intestines that is caused by salmonella germs, which are sometimes present in such food as fresh meats, poultry and fish. Often salmonellosis is mistaken for a 24-hour virus because of similar symptoms . . . headache, fever, stomach cramps, diarrhea and vomiting.

Here are seven precautions suggested by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration, the two federal agencies that deal with the salmonella problem.

1. Assume that salmonella germs are present in all uncooked meat, poultry, and seafood. Since thorough cooking kills these germs, USDA recommends you cook foods at 140 degrees for at least 10 minutes or a higher temperature for shorter periods. Obviously, avoid eating raw fish, meat and eggs.

2. Although cooking kills salmonella germs, using the same platters and utensils before and after cooking can recontaminate the food with salmonella. As a safety precaution wash all utensils and dishes thoroughly after contact with any raw meat.

3. To safeguard against "cross contamination" also wash hands, kitchen counter space and cutting boards after contact with raw meat. In fact, FDA recommends using one board only for preparing meat and another for cutting vegetables, cheese and other foods.

4. When defrosting meat in the refrigerator, keep it away from all other food and preferably in the meat keeper. Blood from raw meat and poultry can contaminate any food with which it comes in contact.

5. After cooking, do not allow meat or poultry to stand a long time. . . an hour or more. Bacteria grows well under these conditions and can recontaminate the food.

6. Be on guard for the symptoms of salmonella infection in your pet. If your pet is having stomach problems, keep its feeding dishes, toys, bedding and such away from sources in contact with your food, such as the kitchen sink, drain board and food service utensils. Always wash your hands after handling a sick pet.

7. Keep children away from certain pets. . . ducklings, baby chicks and turtles . . . because health authorities recognize these pets as notorious salmonella carriers.

Salmonellosis generally lasts from one to five days. Although it is not usually fatal, it can be dangerous to the very young, the very old and people already weakened by illness.

Cancer Swim Set Sat., Open To All Age Groups

The American Cancer Society, Randall County Unit, is sponsoring a Swim-For-Cancer Meet, Saturday, from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Activities Center pool on the WTSU campus and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Canyon City pool in Conner Park.

The meet is an endurance event and not a race for speed, under the direction of Miss Audre M. Seabridge, of Canyon, instructor of health and physical education at WTSU.

All age groups are invited to enter with each contestant swimming as many laps (25 yards-1 lap) as possible. Certified lifeguards and referees are scheduled on duty at each pool to assist with the event and for safety. Each contestant will be placed in a lane according to swimming ability.

Entry requirements include that each swimmer must have one or more sponsors who have signed prepared sponsor sheets. Sponsors have been asked to donate a suggested minimal fee of 25 cents per lap for their swimmer entries.

In addition, contestants under 21 years of age are required to have a waiver form signed by a parent or guardian before registration. Registration tables will be set up at each pool area before and during the designated swim hours. All contestants must submit sponsor and waiver forms before being eligible to swim.

Following lane placement, entrants will be allowed to swim as many laps as possible without leaving the water or holding to the pool side to rest. Upon completion, contestants must report total laps on sponsor sheets at the registration tables.

Prizes will be offered for the most money raised over-all and the most laps swum over-all. Also, in categories of grades six and below, grades nine and below, grades 12 and below, college and above, four winners will be determined by the most money raised in each grade division.

"We urge contestants to get as many sponsors to back them as possible," said Miss Seabridge.

Following the swim, participants must return to sponsors and show them the validated lap records. All checks should be made payable to the American Cancer Society and contributions are tax deductible.

When pledges have been collected, they are to be taken to Cooper's Thriftway Grocery, 1620 Fourth Avenue with entry forms. To be eligible for prizes, all contributions must be turned in by July 24.

The local American Cancer Society is headed by Miss Allene J. Stovall and Cancer Crusade Chairman is Bennie Cooper, both of Canyon.

Sponsor and waiver forms are available at Frank Castleberry's office in the WTSU Activities Center, First National Bank, West Texas State Bank, and Cooper's Thriftway.

the facts of Alfonso Crespin's case, and visited with the district attorney once, informally, while in the courtroom on other business," the judgment says.

The judgment says Plank appeared before the grievance committee on that matter in February 1973 and at that time was unaware his client had already had his probation revoked in a hearing held during the latter part of January 1973.

The judgment cites another case, the divorce of Joyce and George Markham, who in September 1971 retained Plank to handle their divorce.

They paid a $250 fee to Plank, the judgment says, and the divorce was filed in December 1971.

However, states the judgment, no action was ever taken on the divorce and the case was dismissed for lack of prosecution early this year.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Markham had gone to Oklahoma to teach school and Markham had also left the state.

Plank, a recent graduate of law school, ran against incumbent George Dowlen several years ago in the race for county district attorney.

Last year, he was a candidate for state representative running against Bryan Poff. He withdrew from that campaign, however, before election day and his name was left on the ballot due to a legality.

The season ticket sales reached 4,108 in 1972 and over 2,500 of those ticket holders have renewed their tickets.

The Buffaloes tied for the Missouri Valley Conference football title last fall with Drake and Louisville. They open and close their home schedule this year with those two opponents. Drake is the foe for the season opener Sept. 8 and Louisville closes the year Nov. 24.

In between the two conference contests, the Buffaloes face Northern Illinois Sept. 29, Utah State Oct. 20, Tampa Nov. 10 and Southern Mississippi Nov. 17.

The game with Utah State's Aggies will be the homecoming clash. The Louisville game, which starts at 1:30 p.m., is the only afternoon contest. All other games start at 7:30 p.m. in Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

The 1973 home slate could be the toughest test of all time for the Buffaloes at home. Louisville, in addition to earning a tie for the conference title last fall, had a 9-1 season record.

Utah State and Tampa both rolled up 9-2 season marks. Drake and Northern Illinois compiled 7-4 marks. Tampa is new to the Buffalo schedule and Utah State hasn't been played since 1968.

Coach Gene Mayfield's Buffaloes will test five rivals on the road, including games with four MVC opponents. The Buffaloes play Lamar University Oct. 6 in Beaumont in the lone game against a team which is not a conference member.

Conference games on the road are Tulsa Sept. 15, North Texas State Sept. 22, Wichita State Sept. 27 and New Mexico State Nov. 3. The Wichita State contest is slated for 1:30 p.m. and the remainder are night games.

Season tickets give the West Texas State fans a bargain — a savings of $1 per game. Chair seats at Kimbrough Stadium sell for $6 if purchased by individual games, but are $5, or $30 for the year when purchased as season tickets.

Bench seats as season tickets are $24, or $4 per game, but are $5 if purchased by the individual game. Fans holding season tickets also have an option to renew those same tickets for the following year.

Dennis Syring, 24, of 1906 8th Ave., won first in the final race leading Don Tardy, 27, of 1417 Hillcrest who placed second and Jim Caldwell, 31, of 1101 Creekmere, who placed third.

Activities continued through the afternoon with many families coming to Conner Park early to eat a Buffalo Burger supplied by local scout troop 31.

This year's Fourth was the second in a row to be hampered by weather. In 1972, temperatures in the 40s took their toll in the turnout.

This year's Babe Ruth League All-Stars have been named and the team goes into action Monday in the District 1 tournament to be held here through Saturday.

The Cardinals took home the Babe Ruth pennant this year with a 13-5 record, followed by the Giants with a record of 10-8, the Pirates with 8-10, and the White Sox with a record of 5-13.

Boys on this year's all-star team include Ken Cooper, David Coronado, James Walling and Ronnie Whitney from the Cardinals; Ricky Cooper, Tom Dawdy, Randy Langen and Robbie Ratliff from the Giants; Donnie Bell, Joe Luquette, Matt Madewell and Terry Martin from the Pirates; and Jay Huey, Jonathan Hull and Greg Taylor from the White Sox. Alternates are Dwight Lehman and Mickey McCarter.

District action for the local all-stars begins at 9 p.m. Monday with Canyon going against Pampa. The Top O' Texas team is pitted against the Panhandle of Oklahoma team at 6:30 p.m. Dumas and Borger are also participating in the district playoffs.

Games are scheduled each evening at the Babe Ruth Park field.

County To Eye Loudder Study Again On Mon.

Randall County commissioners are expected to discuss again Monday the study made by City Manager George Loudder proposing that city and county officials pay for extended services on a use basis.

Commissioners meet at 1 p.m. in the Canyon courthouse.

Loudder's study was reviewed formally by county commissioners and city commissioners last week. The study, initially made public by The Canyon News, says that the city and county should work out a payment schedule for jail facilities, dump ground facilities, library, dispatcher service, and fire service based on the use each governmental unit makes of those services.

The county commissioners are also expected to eye the granting of a tax exemption of $3000 for persons 65 years of age and older for their homesteads.

A petition calling for the exemption was presented commissioners last week by Mrs. Lena Seay and Mrs. Mary Parker. They asked for a tax exemption of not less than $5000. Commissioners expressed their intent to grant an exemption but passed action until this week.

Also on the agenda for Monday is discussion of an agreement between Potter and Randall Counties on a veterans service officer.

Retirement Party For Mrs. Clark

Mrs. Allie Clark, who retired recently after more than 35 years as a government employee with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here, was honored with a party Thursday night.

The party was sponsored by the staff of the ASCS office and was attended by more than 25 persons, including past members of the county ASCS committee.

A plaque honoring Mrs. Clark was presented.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Gruner, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Olson, Mr. and Mrs. John Wieck, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Batenhorst, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Rahlfs, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Erwin, and Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, all county committeemen; and Mr. and Mrs. Don Lloyd, Peggy Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Miller, staff members; and Doyle Thomas, ex-district director and former ASCS director.

John Brazzil, county agent, and Mrs. Clark's husband, C. E., were also present.

Father Attacked; Son Admits Guilt

A 22-year-old Palisades man pleaded guilty Friday morning to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and was sentenced to a term of 6 months in county jail.

Ricardo Copley was charged with attacking his father, George Copley, with a sharp-point flag pole on July 4.

Copley told Judge Woody Pond he had been sniffing glue and got angry with his father and attacked him. The incident occurred at the Copley home in the Palisades.

"The program is intended to react to the supply and demand," he said.

Last fall, as supplies diminished due to sales of grain to foreign countries, President Nixon announced that more acreage would be released for cultivation to increase the available supply.

With more acres released for production, the set-aside was reduced and payments likewise reduced, he said.

Lloyd said this year's payments are about on a par with payments made in 1971, when a great number of farm acres were plagued by drouth.
